I note that I have not received an acknowledgment of my report below, made 7 days ago.

But someone on the committee is eagerly marking my necessary comments of today, calling out Gonzalo for his misconduct, as abuse
<https://github.com/sagemath/sage/pull/36561>

Unacceptable; this needs immediate correction.

Hi sage-conduct committee,
Now here's a report of something new.

An accusation "I don't know if you are trying to play some kind of game here." https://github.com/sagemath/sage/pull/36561#discussion_r1575449665 followed by playing the victim "Do you realize I've felt unwelcomed way before your last comment?"

Hi sage-conduct committee,
A propos our discussion (re Tornaria) this morning, let me share some examples of the pattern "acting offended", which is a mild/subtle form of "playing the victim"; a performative manipulation. (This is not a report of a CoC violation.)

- Tornaria: "don't tell me what I should do with my time" (I sure didn't) https://github.com/sagemath/sage/pull/37785#discussion_r1564787139
- Tornaria: "This sounds a little bit aggressive. We are both making an effort to communicate in better terms, so let's try to keep it cool and learn to agree and disagree." (in response to my simple sentence "That's false.")

<https://github.com/sagemath/sage/pull/37287#issuecomment-2067778819>
- Diez (2023): "Do you really think ad hominem attacks are helpful?"
(no such thing to see wide and far)
<https://github.com/sagemath/sage/pull/35404#issuecomment-1506258283>

Best,
Matthias
