Dear Matthias.

You're not helping the situation with antagonizing language such as:

- "... held back since November/December by hostile demands that have nothing to do with our standards of review."
- "... which attempt to obstruct the modularization project and the mechanism for the distribution on PyPI."

Describing the situation in such tactless language, even if you perceive that characterization as correct, is almost guaranteed to have a detrimental effect on the discourse.

In my opinion, making such statements in public does far greater damage to your reputation than any allegation Dima makes. In a vacuum, Dima's allegations ring hollow. With the counterallegations made by you the appearance of two ugly fighters duking it out is hard to escape for a bystander.

We are trying to get things in order again, but serving on the CoCC is not something we can commit a lot of time to. And if you keep putting fuel on the fire I'm not sure we'll be able to catch up.

If your mental health is suffering from this, which I can imagine, I can only recommend taking a break from sagemath development. Sagemath is a wonderful project but it's not worth your health -- not in the least because without your health you wouldn't be able to make worthwhile contributions to sage anyway.

Best wishes and take care,

Nils Bruin

Thanks, Nils, for the timely public response in in which you write

Such allegations will have no effect other than to antagonize the other party. This is not helpful in fostering constructive debate. Please keep this thread to a simple explanation of the issues at hand [...]

But I have to point out that his allegations do have more effects; and "antagonizing the other party" is by far not the worst. They are poisoning our community, are damaging my reputation, and are detrimental to my mental health.

More abuse from Dima Pasechnik, which will need immediate attention.

In https://groups.google.com/g/sage-devel/c/Wjw2wcvgf8k/m/ynwiz66_AQAJ, he -- once again -- accuses me of falsely accusing him of abuse.
